Dedication

This sales initiative is dedicated to the memory of Jack Renchan. Jack's twenty years of dedicated service touched the lives of many people throughout the industry. His leadership and guidance of the Category Advisor Task Force helped develop this Category Advisor concept, which is an example of his many contributions to the company.

1: Introduction to the Category Advisor

51843 8736

Introduction

Over the past several years, the consumer goods/package industry has changed. One change in the tobacco industry, in particular, is that of the customer's demands for more than just cigarettes and fixtures from the manufacturers. Instead, they want and expect more for their services, such as input on the trade and expertise in sales.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company is answering this demand from the industry by restructuring Field Sales and other areas of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company in a way that allows sales personnel to concentrate on serving the customer and selling the company's products. By concentrating on consumers and their needs, the company is giving customers that input and expertise they want — this process is termed Category Management.

Category Management is a consumer-focused, information-based process of establishing strategies and making decisions on product mix, distribution, merchandising, and service in order to maximize consumer satisfaction and category profits. It is used to better serve customers and increase cigarette sales and revenue. However, the process does not apply to everyone. It is applied on the basis of RJR account priority.

The purpose of Category Management is to initially define the role of a Category Advisor for the trade and provide Field Sales with a comprehensive Category Advisor Process which opens communication between the manufacturer, wholesaler, and retailer. Such communication creates a three way partnership that works together to determine the best business practices.

Category Advisors are individuals who: (1) understand customer category objectives and (2) apply Category Management and the appropriate information resources to optimize customer satisfaction and category profits. All activities that a Category Advisor recommends, plans, or executes should help increase RJR's profits by selling more cigarettes.

The Category Advisor's role is to maximize RJR's opportunity by impacting wholesalers', retailers', and smokers' behaviors.

Skills that the Category Advisors gain from practicing Category Management are how to:

- Establish a partnership (Category Partner) via coordinating efforts, information, and resources to accomplish a common objective by successfully meeting the demands of the retail customer.
- Leverage RJR's superior category information knowledge/resources to distinguish the company sales force as Category Experts.
- Understand customer objectives and make recommendations to change those objectives if they could be improved based on RJR's knowledge of the category.

RJR believes that Category Management is the future method by which the trade will manage products. By being the Category Advisor for wholesale and/or retail accounts, RJR is able to compete with other manufacturers in the areas of expertise, knowledge, and performance while keeping in line with RJR's Trade Marketing Vision and up-to-date with customers' technology.

The Category Advisor Manual explains the Category Advisor Process through graphic overviews and detailed steps.

Concepts

Category Advisor Objective

The Category Advisor's main objective is to use Category Management tools and expertise to:

- Professionalize RJR's key sales positions with Category Management tools/expertise to leverage a point of difference (versus competition) and be viewed as the Category Advisor.

Tools to Use

With the process, the Category Advisor will use different tools to "discover, analyze, plan, execute, and evaluate." Appendix A defines these tools and the point in the process at which the Category Advisor should use them.

51843 8737

Process Overview

The Category Advisor Process is made up of five main processes that break down into smaller steps. The following flowchart represents the main processes.

51843 8738

Because the details of each step differ depending on if the account is retail or wholesale, each step is explained based on the account type being discussed. Therefore, Chapter 2 explains how the Category Advisor Process relates to retail accounts, Chapter 3 explains how the Category Advisor Process relates to wholesale accounts, and Chapter 4 explains how the Category Advisor Process relates to direct chain accounts.

Each chapter presents an introduction, concepts of the process, the Category Advisor Process overview, and detailed instructions.

51843 8739

2: Retail Accounts

Introduction

When working with retail accounts, RJR personnel use Category Management to: (1) show accounts the benefits of using RJR personnel as their Category Advisor and (2) increase profits for both the account and RJR. While the Category Advisor Process is an overall process, there are specific details in that process that pertain to retail accounts only. This chapter explains the process as a Category Advisor would apply it to a retail account.

Concepts

Category Advisor Process for Retail Accounts

The Category Advisor Process begins with the Category Advisor discovering information about the account and analyzing that information to determine better business practices to reach the account's objectives. Then, the Category Advisor recommends those practices. When the account accepts the recommendations, both parties develop and execute a business plan. After the plan is executed, the Category Advisor evaluates how well the business plan met the mutual objectives agreed upon. The key point of the Category Advisor Process is to complete all of the steps and do a thorough job of creating a business partner rather than simply making a sale.

Process Overview

To become a Category Advisor for a retail account, managers use the same method, the Category Advisor Process, when meeting with any independent account, from one independent store to a large chain. This process is displayed below:

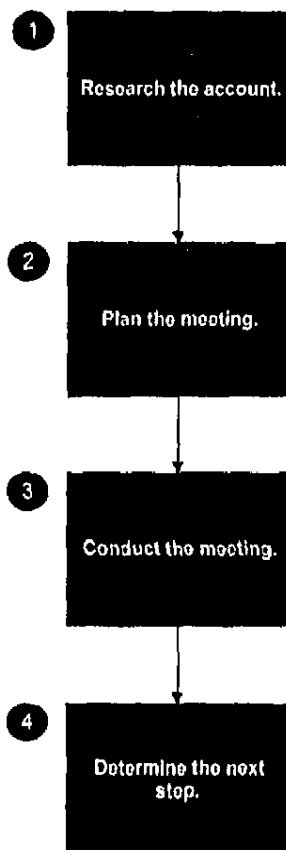

51843 8741

Detailed Instructions

Step 1 — Discovering Process

The Discovering Process is the first step of the Category Advisor Process. It is a mental, evaluative process applied by the Category Advisor as a way to mutually share resources with the account. This process helps the Category Advisor obtain specific business information about the account. The Category Advisor then uses this information to develop recommendations and establish common ground for a future business plan.

Discovering Process

51843 8742

1. Research the Account

Even before you begin planning the meeting, research the account by:

- Finding out information on the account's infrastructure, the type of brands offered, the volume of cigarettes moved, and any other information you can discover.
- Using SIS information, store surveys, and competitive store surveys (within the same market) as resources.
- Reviewing chain files to determine account contracts, pending information, and any chain profiles/key contacts.
- Working with RJR managers and/or sales reps to discuss business opportunities (what and why).

By doing this preliminary research, you are ready to complete the Discovery Questionnaire (discussed below) and plan the meeting.

2. Plan the Meeting

Before you meet with the account, you need to be aware of the type of questions you need to ask. The Discovery Questionnaire contains questions/information you should learn about the account (see Appendix B).

To prepare for the meeting, do the following:

- Review your preliminary data and refer to the Discovery Questionnaire to become familiar with the questions you need to ask. Complete the questions that you can answer.
- List the unanswered questions in the priority of what you "need to know" and what you would "like to know."

Note: Do not use this sheet as a questionnaire for the account to complete; instead, use it as a guide for yourself. By doing so, you can conduct this meeting as an interview with a conversational tone.

- Prepare "Did you know" information for the account. This information might include category positioning:

National Trends

- ⇒ Class of Trade Specific
- ⇒ Comparison of other trade classes

Marketplace Analysis

- ⇒ Class of Trade
- ⇒ Specific chain comparisons
- ⇒ Pricing

51843 8743

Also, be prepared to answer questions about RJR's business process, infrastructure, Total Category Partner, and Merchandising Partner (features and benefits). Remember, the goal is to share resources between RJR and the account.

Schedule a meeting with the appropriate personnel.

3. Conduct the Meeting

Conduct the meeting as an interview with a conversational tone.

Use the list of unanswered questions from the Discovery Questionnaire to ask the appropriate questions. When you ask the account about specific topics, points, or opinions, rank these in the order of importance to the account. This ranking will help you determine the account's main objectives.

Some of the questions/topics that you should cover are listed in the table on the following page.

51843 8744

Overall Philosophy          What is your company's mission statement?          What is the Category Philosophy?          What do you see included in the overall category? --	---	---

Emphasize that you are willing/capable to be the Category Advisor. Use the sell sheet to discuss the Category Advisor Process.

If necessary, evaluate how RJR's objectives and the account's objectives are related on a general level. Determine if common ground exists for mutual business growth. This action might include discussing information you gathered in Step 2:

- National Trends
- Marketplace analysis
- Consumer activities
- RJR business process

Note: Remember that this is not a selling opportunity. Make sure you complete the Category Advisor process.

4. Determine the Next Step

If RJR's objectives and the account's objectives relate, continue with the Analyzing Process. If the objectives do not relate, determine the level of Category Management that you should practice.

51843 8746

Step 2 — Analyzing Process

The Analyzing Process builds on the Discovering Process. The Category Advisor takes the information "discovered," analyzes that information, and formulates recommendations that will target mutual objectives for the account and RJR. In other words, it is the evaluation of the trends, profitability, and competition of the account and its general area.

Analyzing Process

51843 8747

1. Analyze the Trends and Profitability

To analyze the trends and profitability for the account, trading area competition, and national trends, do the following:

- Use the information that you discovered and its importance as related to the account's objectives to analyze the trends and profitability for the account, trading area competition, and national trends.
- Develop scenarios from objectives (best case and worst case).
- Analyze results of each scenario (RJR and account effects).

Also, make sure you have analyzed the applicable information by reviewing the topics listed in the table on the following page.

51843 8748

Category Positioning/ Marketplace Analysis National Trends <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comparison to other Classes of Trade</li> <li>• Class of Trade - specific</li> </ul> Local Trends Rank/Position in Class of Trade Specific chain comparisons Pricing  Account Specific Trends Average Weekly Volume RJR/Industry Share of Market (SOM) by company SOM by price tier Price tier trends Brand specific trends (include up to four brands)	Account Specific Category Management Sales/Profitability SKU Management <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Inventory turns</li> <li>• Brand assortment</li> <li>• Brand mix</li> <li>• Private label</li> </ul> Pricing <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Price gap</li> <li>• Marketplace price levels</li> </ul> Sales/Industry/RDAs <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Market knowledge</li> <li>• Trade segment knowledge</li> <li>• Best practices</li> </ul> Chain/account examples  Account Profitability RDA Analysis <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Current earnings by company - permanent and semipermanent/temporary displays</li> <li>• Promotional support programs - dedicated funds (co-marketing/ PM flex) and non-dedicated (work plan, other)</li> <li>• Work plan support (all companies)</li> </ul> Current profitability Proposed profitability	Initial Recommendations Support retailer objectives and/or common objectives Alter retailer objectives  Available RJR resources (coordinate/verify) Contract budget Fixture budget Fixture availability Promotions availability Manpower availability  RJR Profitability Acceptable (win-win) Break Even/Grow Toward Profit Unacceptable  Recommendations
--	--	---

51843 8749

After you have analyzed this information, ask yourself the following questions:

- Are the account's objectives reasonable compared to the marketplace?

- Are the account's objectives compatible with RJR's needs?
- What scenario is best for RJR and the account?

Note: If you answer yes to the first two questions, develop recommendations that present the best scenario for RJR and the account. If you answer no to the first two questions, work with the account and try to alter its objectives for negotiating purposes.

2. Develop Recommendations

Based on the information you researched earlier and the analysis you conducted above, develop a recommendation that targets mutual objectives that benefit the account and RJR.

When determining merchandising/co-marketing contractual plans, you can use any of four ways to determine payments:

- Individual store
- Store groupings
- Chain averaging
- Dollar averaging

To make sure that the recommendations are viable, ask yourself the following questions:

- Are appropriate RJR resources available?
- Are recommendations profitable for RJR?

Note: If you answer no to either of the above questions, alter your recommendations until you can answer yes.

Before you present these recommendations to the account, confirm them with your appropriate RJR manager.

3. Present Recommendations to the Account

Once you have developed your recommendations, create the presentation you will give to the account.

4. Determine the Next Step

If the account agrees to the recommendations, continue with the joint Planning Process.

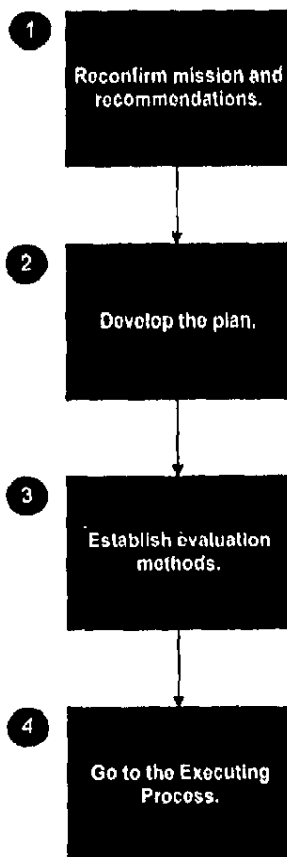

If the account does not agree to the recommendations, evaluate the recommendations, reconsider alternatives (cost, profit, etc.), make the necessary changes, and present them again. If the account agrees to these recommendations, continue with the Planning Process. If the account continues to disagree with the recommendations, determine the level of Category Management you should practice.

51843 8750

Step 3 — Planning Process

The Planning Process brings together the first and second processes. The Category Advisor and the account use the information "discovered" and the resulting "analysis" to develop an inclusive and efficient plan for executing the recommendations. All parties are integral parts to the developing process.

Planning Process

51843 8751

1. Reconfirm Mission and Specific Recommendations

Discuss the agreed upon recommendations at the beginning of the planning meeting to verify the account's knowledge of the plan. Also, reinforce your mutual mission to sell more cigarettes to increase profits and to fulfill smokers' needs.

2. Develop the Plan

Together, develop actions, next steps, and the timetable for the plan. Ensure that all parties involved are in agreement. These parties include the distributor, retailer, manufacturer, and consumer. As the graphic below illustrates, all four parties should have an overlapping interest in the plan. It is this overlapping center that, as a Category Advisor, you are most interested in developing.

Also, list all agreed upon actions, needed resources, and next steps so that all involved understand their time and resource commitments.

Note: Remember, the actions of the Category Advisor are directed toward consumers; the retailer, distributor, and manufacturer are simply enablers to reach those consumers.

51843 8752

Your plan will probably cover the majority of the following topics:

Specific Opportunities	Next Steps
Short term	Responsibilities
Long term	RJR or account personnel
	Involvement by all parties
Implementation Plan	Resource availability
Promotions	System to measure progress/feedback
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Planning Calendar/RJR and Competition</li> <li>Full Price (FP) work plan</li> <li>Savings work plan</li> <li>Private label accrual</li> <li>Co-Marketing</li> <li>Price gap</li> <li>SME</li> <li>Direct marketing</li> </ul>	Communication process

51843 8753

3. Establish Evaluation Methods

With the account, determine what type of measurement and feedback systems you will use to evaluate how well the plan meets your common objectives.

Generally, there are two basic methods to evaluate performance:

1. Pre to Post

- Good for measuring changes over time within the same account(s)
- Good for looking at the account's business
- Poor for Category Evaluation - no comparison to other accounts

Example:

Pre	Post	Difference
10	20	+10

Note: If using AIM/Delivery Data, use a minimum of 13 weeks' worth of data. Also, if the number of stores is different, use the average store volume.

2. Pre to Post (Test versus Control)

- Measures True Net Differences between the test account and the control account that can be attributed to the condition that you are evaluating

Test Panel — Stores that receive treatment or change

Control Panel — Stores that do not receive treatment or change (they remain constant); this panel should be matched as close as possible to the test panel (i.e., COT/Volume/Geography/etc.)

Note: If using AIM/Delivery Data, use a minimum of 13 weeks' worth of data. Also, if the number of stores is different, use the average store volume.

Make sure you set realistic benchmarks, ones that are clearly attainable. Again, during this step, you must ensure that all parties involved are in agreement.

4. Go to the Executing Process

Once all parties have been involved in the planning and have agreed to the final plan, go to the Executing Process.

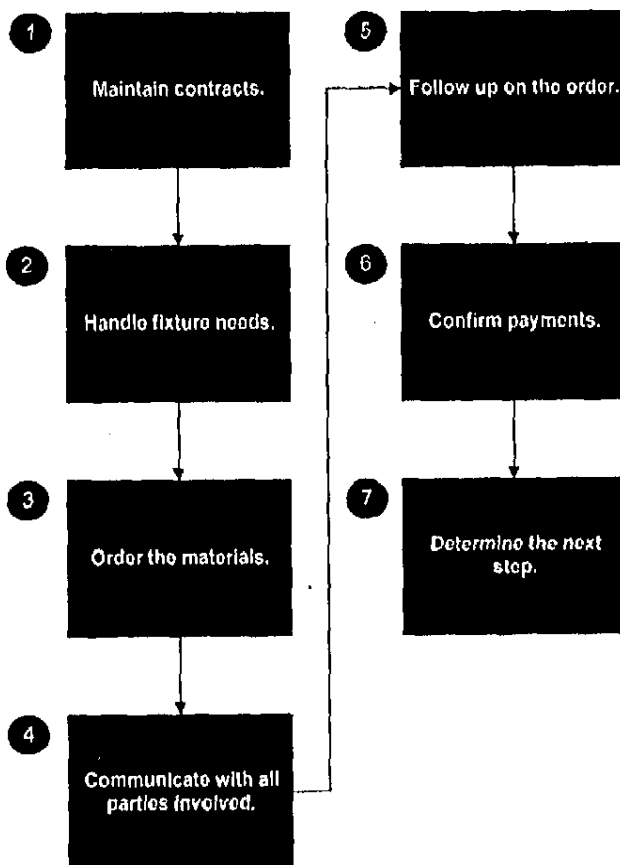

51843 8754

Step 4 — Executing Process

The Executing Process details how RJR and the account should carry out the plan that resulted from the previous processes. This process makes the recommendations a reality.

With retail accounts, there are numerous plans you could develop and execute. Here are two examples that detail plans you will usually deal with: a merchandising plan and a promotional plan. Both types are discussed below.

Executing Process for Merchandising Plan

51843 8755

1. Maintain Contracts

If the account agrees to new contracts, do the following:

1. Datagrab the store list sorted by volume.
2. Break the list by any of the following volume levels:
  - individual store
  - store groupings
  - chain averaging
  - dollar averaging
3. Match the Data Grabber list to the account's store list.
4. Add any missing stores (via the ROU).
5. Assign the appropriate contracts to the store.
6. Have the ROU update the contract via SIS.

If the account has a current contract, uphold the contract as it is stated.

2. Handle Fixture Needs

After you and the account have decided what new fixtures are needed, do the following:

1. Add the order date, install date, and fixture information (item, size, type, etc.) columns to the Data Grabber list.
2. Complete a special fixture request if needed.
3. Notify Sales Materials Logistics of orders over 35 stores.
4. Develop an installation plan.
5. Complete necessary plan-o-grams by fixture type, by store.
6. Roll up chain RDA payments by fixture type, by store.

3. Order the Materials

To ensure that the materials are ordered correctly and on time, do the following:

1. Sort the Data Grabber list by the order dates.
2. Complete all order forms.
3. Send the order to the Materials Coordinator at the ROU.

51843 8756

4. Communicate with All Parties Involved

- Communicating with the account
  1. Send the account a letter that includes the Data Grabber list (sorted by store number or specification(s) by the account), space management information, and RDA information.
  2. Request the account to send a letter to its personnel, with a copy to RJR personnel, outlining authorized changes and its commitment to the business plan.
- Communicating with the field
  3. Write a letter to the field that includes all contract and fixture details, as well as the Data Grabber list sorted by division numbers.
  4. Mail this letter to the ROUs and include a copy of the letter written by the account in step 2 above.
  5. Complete work order forms for the local ROU.
  6. Request that the Materials Coordinator schedule part-timers to install the fixtures.
- Communicating with the direct account
  7. Write the direct account a letter instructing when, where, and what they are to deliver to the retail account.

If the direct account was not present at the Planning Process, include a copy of the retail account's letter that details authorized changes and commitment to the business plan.

5. Follow up on the Order

If you are notified with a problem, handle it promptly contacting the necessary personnel and whomever else is affected.

As soon as the merchandising aspect of the plan is implemented, check with the account to verify the plan's completion, and solve any problems with the ROU or with the account.

6. Confirm Payments

Verify all payments and other information on the pay register. Forward it to the ROU for processing.

7. Determine the Next Step

If you must execute additional plans, do so based on these steps. If the plan also includes promotions/co-marketing, continue with the next set of instructions. If not, continue with the next section, Step 5 — Evaluating Process.

51843 8757

Executing Process for Promotions/Co-Marketing Plan

51843 8758

1. Prepare for Executing the Plan

As you sell promotions/co-marketing programs to the account, do the following:

1. Determine which promotions or co-marketing programs the account and you decided to work.
2. Complete the required forms, if applicable.
  - New Item Form(s) — 1 per brand per state
  - Shipper Form(s) — 1 per shipper (SKU)
3. Complete the prebook order forms.

2. Identify the Retail Accounts

Based on the plan's needs, identify the scope of retail accounts that you need to cover.

3. Coordinate allocations with the ROU

Transfer the appropriate allocations to the account's supplier through the Promotions Coordinator at the ROU.

4. Communicate with all parties involved

Communicate the promotional plans and the corresponding responsibilities to the wholesaler, to all retail stores involved (who in turn notify their people), and to the RJR field personnel.

5. Confirm Payments

Obtain all of the necessary documentation and send it to the System Coordinator at the ROU. He/she will issue a payment to the account.

6. Go to the Evaluating Process

If you have carried out the plan to the fullest extent possible, go to the Evaluating Process.

51843 8759

Step 5 — Evaluating Process

The Evaluating Process uses the benchmarks and practices established in the Planning Process to evaluate how well the Category Advisor Process met the objectives also set forth in the Planning Process. Therefore, use this process as completely and productively as possible in order to discover areas that need reanalyzing.

Evaluating Process

51843 8760

1. Analyze the Results

Note: Remember that the Region Business Manager (RBM) is a great resource to help you evaluate the plan and understand the results.

Analyze the results based on the RJR objectives and account objectives and on the methods determined during the Planning Process.

2. Evaluate the Results

Based on your analysis, determine how effective the plan was and what parts of the Category Advisor Process need to be addressed.

Ask yourself the questions listed on the following page to determine if the results prove the plan to be effective or ineffective and to determine which process you should reanalyze (if any).

51843 8761

Questions	Answer	Action

6. Were there changes in the Marketplace that affected the objectives?	Yes	Go to question 7.
	No	Go to question 8.
7. Would these changes alter objectives?	Yes	Return to the Analyzing Process.
	No	Go to question 8.
8. Was the Discovering Process followed correctly?	Yes	Present the results to the account.
	No	Return to the Discovering Process.

51843 8762

3. Present the Results to the Account and RJR

Once you have determined how well the plan fit RJR's and the account's needs, present the results to the account.

The results should include how well the plan met consumer needs/wants. The results may include details on:

- Sales Profits
  - ⇒ Compliance
  - ⇒ Promotional execution
  - ⇒ Cost share

Also, report the results and share best practices with the region office. If necessary, return to any of the processes to rethink the plan.

4. Apply the Evaluation Results to the Next Plan

Based on what you have learned going through this process, continue with your short term plans to meet long term objectives by applying Category Management to your accounts.

51843 8763

3: Wholesale Accounts

Introduction

When working with wholesale accounts, managers use Category Management to: (1) show accounts the benefits of using RJR personnel as their Category Advisor and (2) increase profits for both the account and RJR. While the Category Advisor Process is an overall process, there are specific details in that process that pertain to wholesale accounts only. This chapter explains the process as a Category Advisor would apply it to a wholesale account.

Concepts

Category Advisor Process for Wholesale Accounts

The Category Advisor Process begins with the Category Advisor discovering information about the account and analyzing that information to determine better business practices to reach the account's objectives. Then, the Category Advisor recommends those practices. When the account accepts the recommendations, both parties develop and execute a business plan. After the plan is complete, the Category Advisor evaluates how well the business plan met the mutual objectives agreed upon. The key point of the Category Advisor Process is to complete all of the steps and do a thorough job of creating a business partner rather than simply making a sale.

51843 8764

Process Overview

Just like the process completed for retail accounts, managers use the same process to become a Category Advisor for wholesale accounts. This Category Advisor Process is displayed below:

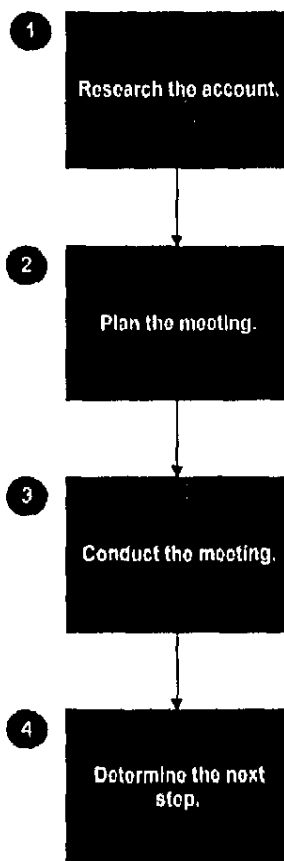

51843 8765

Detailed Instructions

Step 1 — Discovering Process

The Discovering Process is the first step of the Category Advisor Process. It is a mental, evaluative process applied by the Category Advisor as a way to mutually share resources with the account. This process helps the Category Advisor obtain specific business information about the account. The Category Advisor then uses this information to develop recommendations and establish common ground for a future business plan.

Discovering Process

51843 8766

1. Research the Account

Even before you begin planning the meeting, research the account by doing the following:

- Find out information on the account's infrastructure, the type of brands offered, the volume of cigarettes moved, the number of stores served, and any other information you can discover.
- Work with RJR managers and/or sales reps to discuss business opportunities (what and why).

By doing this preliminary research, you are ready to complete the Discovery Questionnaire (discussed below) and plan the meeting.

2. Plan the Meeting

Before you meet with the account, you need to be aware of the type of questions you need to ask. The Discovery Questionnaire contains questions/information you should learn about the account (see Appendix B).

To prepare for the meeting, do the following:

- Review your preliminary data and refer to the Discovery Questionnaire to become familiar with the questions you need to ask. Complete the questions that you can answer.
- List the unanswered questions in the priority of what you "need to know" and what you would "like to know."

Note: Do not use this sheet as a questionnaire for the account to complete; instead, use it as a guide for yourself. By doing so, you can conduct this meeting as an interview with a conversational tone.

- Prepare "Did you know" information for the account. This information might include category positioning:

National Trends

- ⇒ Class of Trade Specific
- ⇒ Comparison of other trade classes

Marketplace Analysis

- ⇒ Class of Trade
- ⇒ Specific account comparisons
- ⇒ Pricing

Also, be prepared to answer questions about RJR's business process, infrastructure, Retail Total Category Partner, and Merchandising Partner (features and benefits). Remember, the goal is to share resources between RJR and the account.

51843 8767

Schedule a meeting with the appropriate personnel.

3. Conduct the Meeting

Conduct the meeting as an interview with a conversational tone.

Use the list of unanswered questions from the Discovery Questionnaire to ask the appropriate questions. When you ask the account about specific topics, points, or opinions, rank these in the order of importance to the account. This ranking will help you determine the account's main objectives.

Some of the questions/topics that you should cover are listed in the table on the following page.

51843 8768

---	---	--

51843 8769

Emphasize that you are willing and capable to be the Category Advisor. Use the sell sheet to discuss the Category Advisor Process.

If necessary, evaluate how RJR's objectives and the account's objectives are related on a general level. Determine if common ground exists for mutual business growth. This action might include discussing information you gathered in Step 2:

- National Trends
- Marketplace analysis
- Consumer activities
- RJR business process

Note: Remember that this is not a selling opportunity. Make sure you complete the Category Advisor process.

4. Determine the Next Step

If RJR's objectives and the account's objectives relate, continue with the Analyzing Process. If the objectives do not relate, determine the level of Category Management that you should practice.

51843 8770

Step 2 — Analyzing Process

The Analyzing Process builds on the Discovering Process. The Category Advisor takes the information "discovered," analyzes that information, and formulates recommendations that will target mutual objectives for the account and RJR. In other words, it is the evaluation of the trends, profitability, and competition of the account and its general area.

Analyzing Process

51843 8771

1. Analyze the Trends and Profitability

To analyze the trends and profitability for the account, trading area competition, and national trends, do the following:

- Use the information that you discovered and its importance as related to the account's objectives to analyze the trends and profitability for the account, trading area competition, and national trends.
- Develop scenarios from objectives (best case and worst case).
- Analyze results of each scenario (RJR and account effects).

Also, make sure you have analyzed the applicable information listed below:

Wholesale Partners Program	Marketplace Analysis
Current earnings by company	Classes of Trade
Promotional support programs	Specific direct account comparison
• VAP	Overall (street) SOM by company
• Competitive programs	Overall (street) SOM by price tier
Future potential/priority
Account Specific Trends	Account Profitability
Average weekly volume	Current
RJR/Industry	Proposed
Share of Market (SOM) by company	What if scenarios
SOM by price tier and company
Price tier trends	Available RJR resources
Brand specific trends	Allocations
	Potential Recommendations
	Wholesaler objectives

51843 8772

After you have analyzed this information, ask yourself the following questions:

- Are the account's objectives reasonable compared to the marketplace?
- Are the account's objectives compatible with RJR's needs?
- What scenario is best for RJR and the account?

Note: If you answer yes to the first two questions, develop recommendations that present the best scenario for RJR and the account.

If you answer no to the first two questions, work with the account and try to alter its objectives for negotiating purposes.

2. Develop Recommendations

Based on the information you researched earlier and the analysis you conducted above, develop a recommendation that targets mutual objectives that benefit the account and RJR.

To make sure that the recommendations are viable, ask yourself the following questions:

- Are appropriate RJR resources available?
- Are recommendations profitable for RJR?

Note: If you answer no to either of the above questions, alter your recommendations until you can answer yes.

Before you present these recommendations to the account, confirm them with your appropriate RJR manager.

3. Present Recommendations to the Account

Once you have developed your recommendations, create the presentation you will give to the account.

4. Determine the Next Step

If the account agrees to the recommendations, continue with the joint Planning Process.

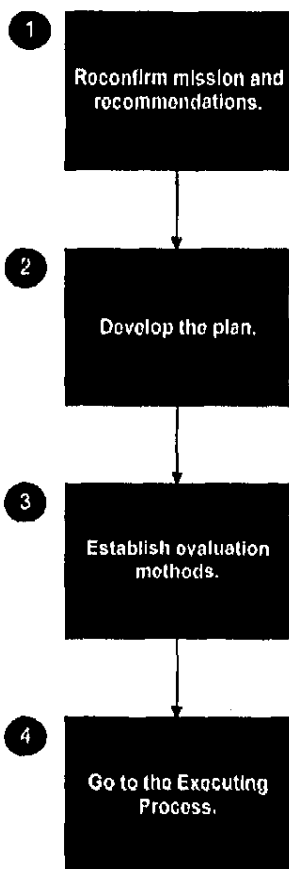

If the account does not agree to the recommendations, evaluate the recommendations, reconsider alternatives (cost, profit, etc.), make the necessary changes, and present them again. If the account agrees to these recommendations, continue with the Planning Process. If the account continues to disagree with the recommendations, determine the level of Category Management you should practice.

51843 8773

Step 3 — Planning Process

The Planning Process brings together the first and second processes. The Category Advisor and the account use the information "discovered" and the resulting "analysis" to develop an inclusive and efficient plan for executing the recommendations. All parties are integral parts to the developing process.

Planning Process

51843 8774

1. Reconfirm Mission and Specific Recommendations

Discuss the agreed upon recommendations at the beginning of the planning meeting to verify the account's knowledge of the plan. Also, reinforce your mutual mission to sell more cigarettes to increase profits and to fulfill smokers' needs.

2. Develop the Plan

Together, develop actions, next steps, and the timetable for the plan. Ensure that all parties involved are in agreement. These parties include the distributor, retailer, manufacturer, and consumer. As the graphic below illustrates, all four parties should have an overlapping interest in the plan. It is this overlapping center that, as a Category Advisor, you are most interested in developing.

Also, list all agreed upon actions, needed resources, and next steps so that all involved understand their time and resource commitments.

Note: Remember, the actions of the Category Advisor are directed toward consumers; the retailer, distributor, and manufacturer are simply enablers to reach those consumers.

51843 8775

Your plan will probably cover the majority of the following topics:

Specific Opportunities	Key Support Personnel
Short term	RJR
Long term	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• RSM</li> <li>• RBM</li> <li>• ROM/ROU Coordinators</li> <li>• KAM</li> <li>• AM</li> <li>• DM</li> <li>• Home Office</li> </ul>
Promotions	Wholesale account
Planning Calendar/RJR and Competition	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Buyer</li> <li>• Sales Manager</li> <li>• Key Account Manager</li> <li>• Sales Person</li> <li>• General Manager</li> <li>• Owner</li> </ul>
Full Price work plan
Savings work plan
Private label accrual
SME
Merchandising
Private label display and POS
Next Steps
Responsibilities
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• RJR or account personnel</li> <li>• Involvement by all parties</li> </ul>
Resource availability
System to measure progress/feedback
Communication process

3. Establish Evaluation Methods

With the account, determine what type of measurement and feedback systems you will use to evaluate how well the plan meets your common objectives.

51843 8776

Generally, there are two basic methods to evaluate performance:

1. Pre to Post

- Good for measuring changes over time within the same account(s)
- Good for looking at the account's business
- Poor for Category Evaluation - no comparison to other accounts

Example:

Pre	Post	Difference
10	20	+10

Note: If using AIM/Delivery Data, use a minimum of 13 weeks' worth of data. Also, if the number of stores is different, use the average store volume.

2. Pre to Post (Test versus Control)

- Measures True Net Differences between the test account and the control account that can be attributed to the condition that you are evaluating

Test Panel — Stores that receive treatment or change

Control Panel — Stores that do not receive treatment or change (they remain constant); this panel should be matched as close as possible to the test panel (i.e., COT/Volume/Geography/etc.)

Note: If using AIM/Delivery Data, use a minimum of 13 weeks' worth of data. Also, if the number of stores is different, use the average store volume.

Make sure you set realistic benchmarks, ones that are clearly attainable. Again, during this step, you must ensure that all parties involved are in agreement.

4. Go to the Executing Process

Once all parties have been involved in the planning and have agreed to the final plan, go to the Executing Process.

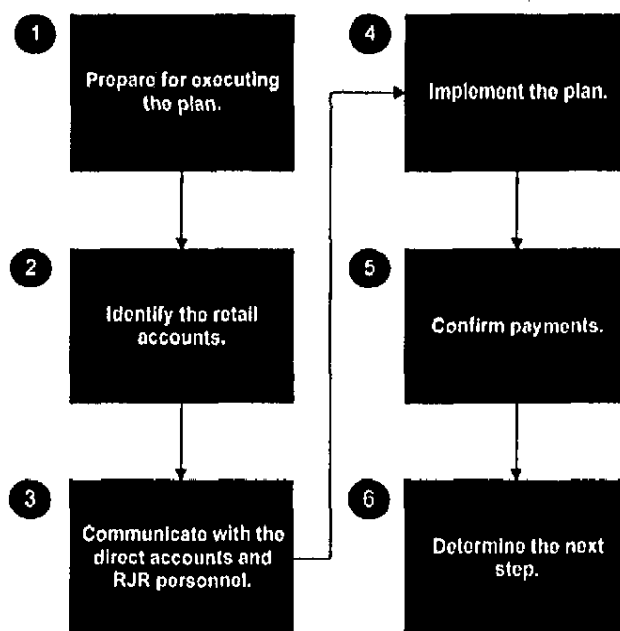

51843 8777

Step 4 — Executing Process

The Executing Process details how RJR and the account should carry out the plan that resulted from the previous processes. This process makes the recommendations a reality.

With wholesale accounts, there are numerous plans you could develop and execute. Here are two examples that detail plans you will usually deal with: a SKU management/product distribution plan and a promotional plan. Both types are discussed below.

Executing Process for SKU Management/ Product Distribution Plan

51843 8778

1. Prepare for Executing the Plan

As you sell new brands and distribution programs to the account, do the following:

1. Prepare materials to include a complete Fact Page.
2. Complete the required forms, if applicable.
  - New Item Form(s) — 1 per brand per state

- Shipper Form(s) — 1 per shipper (SKU)

3. Obtain a PO # and call in the orders.
4. Complete forecasting, if applicable.

2. Identify the Retail Accounts

Based on the plan's needs, the direct account and you will identify the scope of retail accounts that you need to cover.

3. Communicate with Accounts and RJR Personnel

Notify the key players at the direct account and the appropriate RJR field personnel (through the ROU).

4. Implement the Plan

1. With the plan, build/enhance VAP.
2. Monitor the plan's progress.
3. Ensure that the direct account arranges packing and shipping to the retail account.

5. Confirm Payments

With the Partners program, do the following to prepare for paying the account:

1. Review the status of the plan.
2. Verify the amount owed.
3. Correct/approve the payment.
4. Forward the necessary backup documentation to the System Coordinator at the ROU. He/she will issue a payment to the account.

With regular temporary display payments for VAP, do the following:

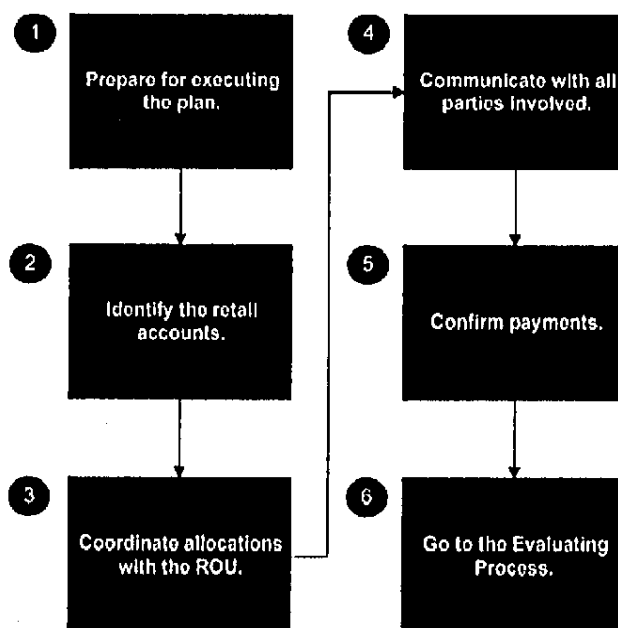

1. Identify the program to be paid.
2. Gather the necessary backup documentation.
3. Forward the necessary backup documentation to the System Coordinator at the ROU. He/she will issue a payment to the account.

6. Determine the Next Step

If you must execute additional plans, do so based on these steps. If the plan also includes promotions/co-marketing, continue with the next set of instructions. If not, continue with the next section, Step 5 — Evaluating Process.

51843 8779

Executing Process for Promotions/Co-Marketing Plan

1. Prepare for Executing the Plan

As you sell promotions/co-marketing programs to the account, do the following:

1. Determine which promotions or co-marketing programs the account and you decided to work.
2. Complete the required forms, if applicable.
  - New Item Form(s) — 1 per brand per state
  - Shipper Form(s) — 1 per shipper (SKU)
3. Obtain a PO # and call in the orders.
4. Develop the prebook order forms.

2. Identify the Retail Accounts

Based on the plan's needs, identify (with the direct account) the scope of retail accounts that you need to cover.

51843 8780

3. Coordinate allocations with the ROU

Transfer the appropriate allocations to the account through the Promotions Coordinator at the ROU.

4. Communicate with all parties involved

Communicate the promotional plans and the corresponding responsibilities to the wholesaler, to all retail stores involved (who in turn notify their people), and to the RJR field personnel.

5. Confirm Payments

Obtain all of the necessary documentation and send it to the System Coordinator at the ROU. He/she will issue a payment to the account.

6. Go to the Evaluating Process

If you have carried out the plan to the fullest extent possible, go to the Evaluating Process.

51843 8781

Step 5 — Evaluating Process

The Evaluating Process uses the benchmarks and practices established in the Planning Process to evaluate how well the Category Advisor Process met the objectives also set forth in the Planning Process. Therefore, use this process as completely and productively as possible in order to discover areas that need reanalyzing.

Evaluating Process

51843 8782

1. Analyze the Results

Note: Remember that the Region Business Manager (RBM) is a great resource to help you analyze and understand the plan's results.

Analyze the results based on the RJR objectives and account objectives and on the methods determined during the Planning Process.

2. Evaluate the Results

Based on your analysis, determine how effective the plan was and what parts of the Category Advisor Process need to be addressed.

Ask yourself the questions on the following page to determine if the results prove the plan to be effective or ineffective and to determine which process you should reanalyze (if any).

51843 8783

Questions	Answer	Action
1. Have some of the objectives been achieved?	Yes	Go to question 2.
	No	Go to question 3.
2. Were some of the objectives not achieved?	Yes	Go to question 3.
	No	Present your results to the account.
3. Was the Executing Process followed correctly?	Yes	Go to question 4.
	No	Return to the Executing Process.
4. Was the Planning Process followed correctly?	Yes	Go to question 5.
	No	Return to the Planning Process.
5. Was the Analyzing Process followed correctly?	Yes	Go to question 6.
	No	Return to the Analyzing Process.
6. Were there changes in the Marketplace that affected the objectives?	Yes	Go to question 7.
	No	Go to question 8.
7. Would these changes alter objectives?	Yes	Return to the Analyzing Process.
	No	Go to question 8.
8. Was the Discovering Process followed correctly?	Yes	Present the results to the account.
	No	Return to the Discovering Process.

51843 8784

3. Present the Results to the Account and RJR

Once you have determined how well the plan fit RJR's and the account's needs, present the results to the account.

The results should include how well the plan met consumer needs/wants. The results may include details on:

- Sales/Profits
- Promotional Execution

- Partners Program Performance
  - ⇒ Data to RJR (accurately/timely)
  - ⇒ Return goods
  - ⇒ RJR brand distribution
  - ⇒ Share performance
  - ⇒ Program payments

Also, report the results and share best practices with the region office. If necessary, return to any of the processes to rethink the plan.

4. Apply the Evaluation Results to the Next Plan

Based on what you have learned going through this process, continue with your short term plans to meet long term objectives by applying Category Management to your accounts.

51843 8785

4: Direct Chain Accounts

Introduction

When working with direct chain accounts, RJR personnel use Category Management to: (1) show accounts the benefits of using RJR personnel as their Category Advisor and (2) increase profits for both the account and RJR. While the Category Advisor Process is an overall process, there are specific details in that process that pertain to direct chain accounts only. This chapter explains the process as a Category Advisor would apply it to a direct chain account.

Concepts

Category Advisor Process for Direct Chain Accounts

The Category Advisor Process begins with the Category Advisor discovering information about the account and analyzing that information to determine better business practices to reach the account's objectives. Then, the Category Advisor recommends those practices. When the account accepts the recommendations, both parties develop and execute a business plan. After the plan is executed, the Category Advisor evaluates how well the business plan met the mutual objectives agreed upon. The key point of the Category Advisor Process is to complete all of the steps and do a thorough job of creating a business partner rather than simply making a sale.

51843 8786

Process Overview

Just like the process completed for retail and wholesaler accounts, managers use the same process to become a Category Advisor for direct chain accounts. This Category Advisor Process is displayed below:

51843 8787

Detailed Instructions

Because direct chain accounts are similar to a retail account and a wholesale account combined, simply apply the Category Advisor Process to the retail and wholesale sides as it relates, while keeping in mind the chain's overall success. When doing this, ensure that the retail and wholesale sides have similar end goals so that their business plans do not conflict.

Also, remember that you can evaluate the Category Advisor Process as it relates to the direct chain, rather than how it relates to the retail and wholesale sides individually, if the account would like to see those results.

51843 8788

Appendix A: Tools to Use

Note: This list is a reference of the tools you can use during the Category Advisor Process. It is not necessary to use all of the tools listed for each process. The shaded areas indicate the step(s) in the Category Advisor Process in which each tool could be used.

The listing below corresponds with the RJR CatPro Toolkit Menu.
